

Attention DC!

There may be far-right actors in your area this weekend!

Another far-right rally in DC organized by a Trump campaign staffer in defense of right-wing Capitol stormers is planned for 18 September 2021. Here are some groups to look for:

Proud Boys: Far-right street-fighting group known to violently attack any who they believe associated with 'Antifa' or 'BLM'. Can be easily identified by their black and yellow attire and chants of "UHURU" or "FUCK ANTIFA".

Oath Keepers: Often older-aged militia members who were formed over a decade ago because they were afraid that Obama was going to take their guns and institute socialism.

Threepers: The III% movement, like the Oath Keepers, was formed in part because middle-aged white men wanted to overthrow Obama. While the III% is more a lifestyle brand than a cohesive organization at this point (and different III% groups hate each other), adherents should still be considered dangerous.

Boogaloo Adherents: The "Boogaloo" started as a racist meme on 4chan's firearms board. Since at least 2020, some members have attempted to join BLM demonstrations, but their well-documented acceptance of neo-Nazis and Nazi origins should draw pause for ever trusting them.

'Groypers': Stemming from cringe online spaces associated with the Alt-Right, the Groyper Army and their related posting communities are online fascist irony-posters often associated with people like Unite the Right attendee Nick Fuentes.

Other assorted "red flags": These images should also be considered as indicative of right-wing politics and as a sign of where their bearers stand.
